Union League of New York inviting the presence of the delegates at a grand mass meeting in that City. A committee was appointed on this subject. On motion, it was then ordered that a committee of one from each State be appointed to prepare a statement of the condition in which the loyal men of the now reconstructed States have been placed by Andrew Johnson's reconstruction policy. The committee was appointed, as follows:

Texas, J. H. Bell; Louisiana, Hon. H. C. Warmouth; Georgia, C. G. Baylor; Alabama, Captain D. H. Bingham; Mississippi, R. O. Sydney; Arkansas, J. W. Bates; North-Carolina, A. W. Tourgee; Florida, Colonel

Resolutions in relation to negro suffrage were introduced, and after debate referred. Also resolutions concerning the New Orleans massacre, and upon other subjects. When the Convention adjourned.

The Northern Convention assembled on Tuesday morning and remained in session, transacting no business, but entertained themselves by speeches from prominent personages on the condition of the country.

private, reporters being excluded. The questions discussed were : First. Whether it was desirable that the Northern convention should meet again;

Second, Whether, if the Southern convention adopted the principle of negro suffrage ance of the conductor, Andrew Johnson. All in its platform, it would be wise or politic to endorse it.

The general expression of sentiment was in the negative on both these propositions, the Governors generally taking the ground negro suffrage, the people of their States were not yet educated up to that point, and that therefore to avoid this difficult question it was desirable that there should be no regular convocation of the convention. It is understood that such is the course resolved upon

The President and Secretary Seward at Niagara.

The President and his party of friends were welcomed at Niagara, on their way to Chicago, in a distinguished manner. Mr. Seward said: Fellow-citizens, alcall you neighbors. You do not want a speech from me. [Yes, yes.] If you do, it is only to get up a quarrel between the President of the United States and myself, for I shall have to tell you that after the clear and lucid exposition of the policy of the Government, which may be called "his policy" or "our policy," since Abraham Lincoln commeaced it, and it has been carried out since the inauguration of Andrew Johnson. belonged to three or four parties, and I have been generally considered a very consistent party-man, and the enemies of those partihave generally thought me a tolerably ive one. I was never accused of instability. I know, as a party man, that the course of wisdom is to follow the head of the party, but there are a great many who differ from me, and if they think that instead of following the nominated and chosen head of their party the way to make that party successful is by following the tail. If they are such fools they must take the consequences.— [Cheers.] I will not follow the tail of a party, I am not such a fool. Who is the head of their party in the State of New-York? A voice, Thad. Stevens. [Laughter and cheers.] I ask who is their head in the State of New-York? A voice Horace Greeley. [Renewed laughter and cheers.] Very well, if I mean to do a party any good I want to make it successful. Now I invite them to put their head man in nomination, and I do not agree with you in your opinion of Mr. Greeley, by any means. [Laughter and cheers.] I want them to nominate the man they intend to nominate for Governor of the State of New-York to test their principles, and in the election, now some six weeks off. if he is not defeated by a majority There was also a meeting of Northern Gov- of 40,000, do not call me a prophet. Government and my country to follow a party divided, distracted, weak, imbecile, vacillating and absurd, seeking its own destruc-tion? I have done a very different thing.— We set the railway train on the track, the the privileged seats were offered to this party that complains of desertion. They were the very first invited to enter; but no, they would not enter, and now when they see that it is fast filling up with outsiders and is passing that while individually they were in favor of by them, they say they been deserted by the conductor. [Laughter and cheers.] Now I want to know who the leader of their party is in the United States. There is no party that can exist, stand and live in the United States that does not exist in every part of it in a state of peace and not in revolutionary condition. Who is their leader? [A voice, "Thad. Stevens."] No, they will not accept him as their leader. They offer you no individual name. Their name is "The Congress of the United States," and the Congress of the United States is a force that exists until the 4th of March next; then their party is to gress so constituted is gone, and the next lot will in all probability be in direct opposition to it, and I suppose in that event the party will be gone, too.
